

Bill Overhauling Adult Education Fund Setup Fails

Adult education classes in Torrance got a last-minute reprieve from the legislative guillotine last week in Sacramento, when a strong teacher's lobby turned the bill in force to help defeat the Senate-passed bill that would have overhauled state financing of adult classes in California.

The Assembly Education committee voted 11 to 4 against the bill, SB 1922, which was proposed by Sen. Harold T. Johnson (D) of Roseville. The bill would have prevented school districts from receiving state aid for recreational, physical education, civil defense and first-aid courses, and would have practically cut the local program in half, according to Vernon Sheblak, director of Adult Education for the Torrance School District.

The California Teachers Association opposes the bill and called it a crippling blow to the entire structure of adult education.

Even though the crackdown bill failed to get out of the assembly committee, one of its more objectionable features, according to teachers, has been amended onto another bill, Sen. Nelson Dilworth's school apportionment bill.

This would limit the money allocated to high schools for adult education to $120 per average daily attendance and would stop school districts from receiving any additional "equalization" money for adult education. "Equalization" money is given to poorer school districts to equalize them with the richer. The Torrance School District receives no "equalization" funds for secondary education.

The investigating committee, which published a 496-page Senate interim report on adult education, felt that "equalization" was one of the biggest abuses of the adult program in California.

The Dilworth Bill, SB 731, will pass the Senate very soon now.

List 104 Classes For El Camino Summer Session

A summer session schedule consisting of 104 separate classes and almost that number of different course titles was released last week by Director of Instruction William H. Harless of El Camino College.

All offerings of the college, Harless explained, are without tuition in both regular session and in the summer. The abbreviated summer session, consisting of six weeks, commencing July 1 and running through Aug. 13, will include courses in each of the three major areas of the college: the business and industry division, the humanities and fine arts division, and the science and engineering division.

In the morning program, Dr. Harless said, some of the courses to be offered include office machines, shorthand, cosmetology, vocational drafting, and police investigation. In the afternoon program, some of the courses will be beginning drawing, painting, typing, chemistry, basic English, history, interior decorating, psychology, sociology and speech. In the evening program an even wider range of offerings are planned: Art, accounting, business, typing, chemistry, economics, engineering drawing, English, literature, creative writing, hygiene, home making, mathematics, music, philosophy, Spanish, political science, psychology, and sociology.
